Peninsular and Oriental Mail Co. During the year 1871 the powerful fleet of the

Peninsular and Oriental Mail Steamship Company has been reinforced by five new ateamships of a large and superior class to those previously emplayed, having, in addition to the elegant accommodations provided for passengers, great carrying capacity. One of these vessels, the Indus, was built by Messes. Denny Brothers, of Dumbarton, and the other four by Messra, Caird & Co., of Greenock. The Indus, Khedive and Mirrapore. are now successfully running in the Eastern seas, the Pekin had her official trial trip on Saturday in Stokes Bay, and the Peshawur was launched a fortuight ago and will soon be ready for sea. It may be mentioned that the whole of these vessels have been added to the fleet without any additional call upon the shareholders, and it is believed that the same remark will apply to four more steamships of a similar class for which the directors have just concluded contracts. The new steamers have carrying capacity, besides mails, specie, passengers and baggage, for twenty-one hundred tons dead-weight of cargo, or the correspending quantity of measurement goods, whether they consist of $7,000 bales of silk, 8,000 bales cotton, or 4,000 chests of tea. The Pekin, as already mentioned, was taken to Stokes Bay under the command of Capt. Walcott, where she underwent an official trial at the measured mile, having a large party of the directors, government and company officials, and other gentlemen on board. The result of four runs at the mile were as follows: First run, 4 minutes 30 seconds, or 13:333 knots an hour; second, 4 minutes 5 seconds, or 11:994 knots; third, 4 minutes 38 seconds, or 12:950 knots; fourth, 4 minutes 6 seconds, or 14:654 knots; the true mean speed being 13:918 knots an bour. Average steam, 46 lbs., vacuum 26, and revolutions of engines 62 per minute. She had a total weight of coals, water, and stores on board, amounting to 904 tons, and her draught of water 17 feet forward and 18 feet 2 inches aft, the mean draught being 17 feet 7 inches. The wind at the time was N.N.E. with a force of 3, and a smooth sea. The Pekin is fitted with compound engines of 600-horse power nominal, indicating 3,078 during the trial; diameter of cylinders 62 and 104 inches, length of stroke 54 inches, heating surface of boilers 11,720 square feet, fire-grate surface 316-8 square feet, condensing surface 6059 square feet, diameter of screw 17 feet six inches, with a pitch of 2234 feet, increasing to 24 feet. The demensions of the vessel are as follows: Length between perpendiculars 378 feet 1 inch, length over all 400 feet, breadth of beam 42 feet 5 Inches, depth from floor to spar-deck 33 feet 2 inches, registered tonnage 2,098:56, gross tonnage 3,777:37. Western fort, some time ago, the Major conceived the idea that artillery might be need effectively in fighting with the Indians, by dispensing with gun-carriages and fastening the cannon upon the backs of mules. So he explained his views to the Commandant, and it was determined to try the experiment. A small howitzer was selected and strapped upon an ambulance unio, with the muzzle pointed toward the tail. When they had secured the gun and loaded it with ball-cartridge, they led that calm and steadfast mule out to the bluff, and set up a target in the middle of the river to practice at. The rear of the muis was turned toward the target, and he was backed gently up to the edge of the binff. The officers stood around in a semi-circle, while the Major went up and inserted a time fase in the touchhole of the howitzer. When the fuse was ready. the Major lit it and retired. In a minute or two the hitherto unruffled mule heard the figzing back there in his rear, and it made him uneasy. He reached his head around to ascertain what was going on, and as he did so his body turned and the howitzer began to sweep around the horizon. The mule at last became excited as his curiosity grew more and more intense, and in a second or two he was standing with his four legs in a bunch, making six revolutions a minute, and the howitzer, understand, threatening sudden death to every man within half a mile. The Commandant was observed to climb suddenly up a tree; the Lieutements were seen sliding over the blaff into the river, as if they didn't care at all about the high price of uniforms; the Adjutant made good time toward the fort; the Bergeant began to throw up breastworks with his buyonet, and thu Major rolled over on the ground and greated. In two or three minutes there was a pull of smoke, a dull thad, and the mule-oh! where was he? A solitary seekass might have been seen turning successive back summermalts over the bluff, only to rest at anchor, finally, with his howitzer, at the bottom of the river; while the ball went off toward the fort, hit the chimney in the Major's quarters, rattled the adoba brieks down into the parlor, and frightened the Mejor's wife into couralsions. They do not allude to it now, and no report of the results of the experiment was ever sent to the War Department --Am. Ex.
